

Letting in the light

As spring blooms and the days get longer and warmer, Canadians return to the great outdoors to enjoy the sunshine. It's amazing how blue skies can make us feel better, happier and even healthier. They give us energy and enthusiasm.

But that feeling isn't only available outdoors. If we bring the sun indoors, we can brighten up our lives in every season.

Today's skylights are an energy-efficient way to create a comfortable, sunlit space where the light comes in and hot air goes out (e.g., electric-opening units with rain sensors).
