Improve your game in your own backyard

Golf instructors will tell you that the short game is up to 70% of golf. Yet most people head to the driving range and try their best to knock the plastic cover off the ball, seeing how far they can hit it. Imagine taking strokes off your score by practicing the most important part of the game in the privacy of your own yard, whenever you want.

Pro Putt synthetic putting greens can help you do just that. The green is so realistic looking that most people can't distinguish it from real grass until they get right down and touch it, even though it feels real too.

With no need for chemicals to maintain the green, you're helping the environment. Plus, you're saving valuable time for practice.

In the summer, moms are always looking for ways to keep the kids busy, so why not teach them one of the fastest growing sports in the world – golf. 🌿
